The rules governing the grant of waste lands - Venkatesha applies for the grant of lands already in his holding - there is considerable difference between occupied & unoccupied lands. The former are naturally more valuable than the latter - the Rules & Law govern the restriction with a view to purpose.

Charitable intentions of private persons by allowing grants of such waste lands which at the time were not contributing any income to the Treasury. Thus indirectly they helped the extension of cultivation also. The actual loss of Land-revenue in such a transaction was not contemplated. the case of the Thirteen Villages Khandeshes that the costs prayed for may be granted to the petitioner under the Act.

[illegible]

[illegible] Deputy Commissioner

The reasons for this.
The rules were framed
when there was a good deal of waste land
and the Govt. promoted the charitable intentions of private persons
by allowing grants
of such waste lands
which at the time
were not contributing any income to the Revenue [illegible] but actual loss of Revenue
in such a case action
was not contemplated
This is evidently the difference —
maybe brought out
if enquiries made.

I would suggest that if waste land is available
